BLAIRMORE TENNIS

"CLUB MEETING"

A meeting of the above club was held in the West Canadian offices last evening and plans were discussed for the coming season. The minutes of last meeting were approved and the officers of last year were all re-elected. A statement of finances showed a small deficit, but this will be offset by some monthly fees yet outstanding from last year.

A communication was read from J. Castleman, secretary of the A. L. T. Association, urging all clubs to affiliate in an endeavor to create a province-wide interest in the game and arrange for a series of eliminations to decide the provincial championship. The secretary was instructed to seek further information in this regard and send in an application for membership from the local club.

The matter of repairing the courts, club-houses, rollers, etc., was discussed and the secretary was given power to put a man to work on the courts as soon as weather permits. Several other minor details were also disposed of. The fees will be the same as last year, i.e., gents $5.00; member's wife, daughter or sister $2.50; other ladies $5.00. A monthly fee of $1.00 is also charged gentlemen for upkeep of the courts.

The coming season promises to be a banner one for the club, as upwards of fifty members are in view, and there is no doubt but what the game will flourish here this year.

A. Reid, former member of the A. P.P., had the misfortune to break his ankle while watching the hockey game at Coleman last night. He was removed to the Coleman hospital for treatment.

THE PASS FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

(From Frank Paper, 1908.)

September 3.—The city council of Butte, Montana, where the late H. L. Frank spent so many years of his life, paid tribute at a recent meeting in an eloquent expression of sentiment which by a unanimous vote was ordered spread upon the minutes.

The body of the late Reuben Steeves, who lost his life by drowning while on a duck-hunting expedition a week ago last Monday, was recovered yesterday. The body rose to the surface by natural process on the ninth day. The body arrived here this morning. Interment takes place tomorrow, under auspices of the Masonic Order. Among those from The Pass who volunteered to assist in the search were D. C. Drain, John McDonald, C. D. McKee, John McLean, James Turnbull, Jake Whillier, John Robertson, Samuel McKee, H. E. Lyon, A. A. Sparks, A. V. Lang, Harvey Murphy, John Miller and P. Simpson.

J. R. Wallace, of the Fernie Free Press, was a visitor to Frank yesterday and states that rebuilding is going on at Fernie at a remarkable rate. Mr. Wallace's company is putting in a $20,000 newspaper plant.

A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Williams at Lille on Tuesday.

Mr. R. Colomer, consulting engineer for the coal company, left Saturday to return to France, via New York.

The annual Labor Day matinee of The Pass Trust Association has been postponed owing to circumstances which have arisen within the last few days. The spring floods have considerably damaged the Blairmore race track.

Frank H. Sherman, district president of the U. M. W. of A., has been chosen standard bearer for the Socialist party for the coming election.

September 10.—The funeral of the late Reuben Steeves took place on Friday afternoon last and was very largely attended. The remains were laid to rest in the Blairmore cemetery.

Frank once more has a blacksmith in the person of J. W. Gresham, who has opened a shop adjoining Miller's stable. Mr. Gresham has the reputation of being a skilled mechanic, both at shoeing and general blacksmith work.

September 17.—Capt. Beebe is finishing up the work undertaken by the Blairmore village council. He is now engaged in cribbing the banks of Lyon Creek from the wagon bridge to the mouth of the stream to prevent further damage from high water. He will also riprap the bank of the Old Man river near the west bridge.

H. S. Pelletier and family are moving to New Westminster this week, where Mr. Pelletier has purchased a home.

The United Mine Workers have decided in future ignore the Lemieux Act.

The West Canadian saw mill at Lille was destroyed by fire of unknown origin on Sunday last. About fifty thousand feet of timber went up in smoke as well.

Capt. Beebe's proposal to the village council of Blairmore is that the village go ahead and put in the publicly owned water system. He figures that the village could easily make a system pay at once and eliminate any expense for hydrants. Capt. has a good many citizens with him.

Dr. A. D. Smith, dentist, of St. John, N. B., died of injuries received from being run into by a horse cart. He was a prominent Oddfellow. The editor of this paper had the pleasure of meeting with Dr. Smith in July last.

MASONIC BANQUET

AT COLEMAN

A most enjoyable evening was spent by the members of the Masonic Order at Coleman on Thursday last, when over sixty were in attendance.

The first degree was exemplified in the Canadian rite, which was followed by a banquet arranged by the visitors from Blairmore and Hillcrest. Worshipful Brother Rev. D. K. Allen acted as toastmaster. The following toasts were proposed: "King and Craft"; "Summit Lodge" by the chairman and responded to by W. Bro. A. Short; "The Visitors" by R. W. Bro. W. L. Oumette, responded to by W. Bro. McKinnon; "The Grand Lodge," by R. W. Bro. Alex. Cameron. This was followed by a varied programme of songs, recitations and music.

A song sheet had also been prepared and printed with familiar and catchy choruses, which proved a real success. The whole evening was one of the most enjoyable held in the lodge and cemented the friendships made and created an atmosphere for the Masonic spirit to thrive on.

Mayor McLeod left here Monday night for Edmonton, where he is attending a special convention of the Union of Alberta Municipalities, from which a deputation is to wait upon the provincial government in support of a number of resolutions affecting municipalities and general taxation.

A regular meeting of the Blairmore school board will be held at the central school house on Friday evening of next week.

ATTEMPTED MURDER

A traveller moving his sample trunks from the F. M. Thompson store on Saturday evening last accidentally locked the pet cat in one of the trunks. It was not until a while after when a passer-by was attracted to the trunks standing on the sidewalk by the pitiful mew of kitty that the poor creature's first life was saved. The traveller was located at the Cosmopolitan hotel and hurried to the rescue. On opening the trunk containing the season's styles in ladies' dresses, etc., pussy walked out, indeed unconcerned.

SOUTH ALBERTANS AMONG THE OFFICERS

A number of Southern Albertans were among the officers elected for the ensuing year at the ninth annual convention of the Grand Chapter of the Royal Arch Masons of Alberta held at Edmonton March 14 and 15. S. McMillan, of Macleod, was elected third grand principal; Geo. Cruickshanks, of Hillcrest, grand principal; Geo. Pattinson, of Hillcrest, grand steward; H. O. Haalar, Claresholm, grand superintendent; E. Renyard, Lethbridge, executive committee. The next annual convention will meet in Calgary.

The sale of plants, sweet and scented under the auspices of I.O.O.F. at the Oddfellows hall Saturday afternoon was quite successful. In the neighborhood of $4,000 netted, which will go towards a fund raised for the purpose of erecting a war memorial.

Set a Goal

Your success depends not so much on how much you earn as on what you do with your money. Keep track of your expenditures. Resolve that a year from now you will have saved a certain sum. With non-savers it becomes harder to save as time goes on. Get the saving habit now.

An Object Lesson

The situation in which the Russian people find themselves today affords an impressive object lesson to the world, and one, it is to be supposed, that will have a quelling effect on all other nations. Of course, it will not silence these rascals, radicals, and extremists of the ultra-Socialistic and Communist groups who have duped themselves with the belief that only through red revolution and the destruction of all property rights can equality and justice be brought into the world.

The amazing inconsistency of these extreme radicals, who shout so loudly for equality and the brotherhood of man deriding in the same breath Christianity, seeking the destruction of the churches, and scoffing at the Christ who taught the world the real meaning of the brotherhood of man and gave to the world the supreme example of the application of the Golden Rule, is not lost upon the world and operates to nullify most of the ravings of their particular groups of malcontents.

Since the Russian revolution, and the setting up of the tyrannous autocracy and reign of terror by Lenin and Trotsky, famine has stalked through Russia and countless thousands of men, women and children have died. Organizations the world over have collected millions of dollars to relieve the sufferings of the Russian people, and great-hearted workers have continued for years against the open and secret hostility of the Soviet authorities in self-denying efforts to stem the tide of Russian famine, suffering and death. The Soviet Government has entered into signed agreements with these organizations guaranteeing them immunity and assistance in their work of relief, only to put every obstacle in their way when it came to the giving of effect to those agreements.

The great work of the Nansen Commission was rendered abortive, the All-British Appeal for the Relief of the Famine in Russia was forced to suspend operations and to allow the British Government and people that it was hopeless and useless to waste more time, money and effort to save Russia, and now the American Relief Administration under the chairmanship of Herbert Hoover, has announced that it, too, has decided to quit.

And yet, even now, people are reported to be dying of starvation in some parts of Russia so rapidly that it is impossible to bury the dead; that the sufferings caused by war and revolution were merciful compared with the havoc wrought by famine. And this is a country which formerly not only fed its own people but had an enormous surplus of food products to export for the feeding of the people in the more congested countries of Europe.

There is no lack of land, nor is there lack of peasants to till the same. The whole trouble is in the unsound theories of the Soviet Communist Government. If the peasants produce more than sufficient to keep themselves alive, the Red soldiers of the Soviet seize the balance. Naturally the peasants are not attempting to raise any surplus. Count Ilya Tolstoy says there would be another revolution, but what can an unarmed and starving populace do against the Bolshevik soldiery?

Money in Russia no longer has any value; it is not worth the paper on which the rouble notes are printed. A Russian woman recently arrived in Western Canada, tells an intensely pathetic and revealing story of present day conditions in Russia. Her husband, who came to Canada before the war to establish a new home here, lost all trace of her for eight years. Finally she was located and the husband provided the money to bring her and their young son to this country. It has taken over a year to get them out of Russia. In the Russian village where this woman lived there were 700 families but only 20 children attended school. There are just three grades and school taxes are paid by those families that have children attending school. For a scholar in Grade One, the tax is five bushels of rye per month in advance; in Grade Two, the tax is ten bushels; and in Grade Three, twelve bushels. A pencil cost eight pounds of rye; a First Grade Reader, 25 pounds; and a poor scribbler of only eight pages, two bushels.

The staple food of the bread-eating Russian is wheat and the quantity is strictly limited. Previous to leaving Russia, this woman had not seen salt, oil, tea or coffee for two years, and to purchase a pound of sugar cost her three million roubles. The same was true of butter and eggs. Eggs are paid so many pounds of rye per day for their work. National taxes are paid in farm produce according to the size of the farm. For every acre, a man pays three bushels of rye; for every pig, two pounds of rye; for every horse, six million roubles. The Soviet Government is not interested in religion, so a man who attends church is taxed fifty bushels of rye per year, and this is only one of the means used by the Communists to destroy Christianity in Russia.

With religion destroyed, if possible; with education of the younger generation neglected and rendered almost impossible of attainment; with morals disregarded and forced elevated as the supreme power, and personal property rights denied, and the husband provided the money to bring her and their young son to this country. It has taken over a year to get them out of Russia. In the Russian village where this woman lived there were 700 families but only 20 children attended school. There are just three grades and school taxes are paid by those families that have children attending school. For a scholar in Grade One, the tax is five bushels of rye per month in advance; in Grade Two, the tax is ten bushels; and in Grade Three, twelve bushels. A pencil cost eight pounds of rye; a First Grade Reader, 25 pounds; and a poor scribbler of only eight pages, two bushels.

Nevertheless, there are those in Canada, Great Britain, United States, and other countries who are striving to put into effect in these countries the same economic heresies that have brought ruin and sufferings untold upon Russia and are undermining the whole character of the Russian people and placing an awful mortgage upon the future of that country for many generations to come. These agitators are selling of worse than arson, robbery or even murder, for they seek to destroy not merely property and human life, but the very character and soul of people and nation.

"I Can Now Do My Work Without Feeling Tired"

Mrs. A. Moffat, Roxton Falls, Que., writes:

"I suffered from a run-down system and nervous debility. I could not sleep or rest at night, and felt so weak I could not walk any distance. I took several tonics, but they only helped me while I was taking them. Mother advised me to take Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I felt great benefit from the first box. I continued taking several boxes. Today I feel like a new woman, and am able to do my work without that dreadful tired feeling."

The Latest Element

British Chemist Announces Isolation of a New Material

Had Alexander the Great lived in modern times he would not have sighed for more worlds to conquer, but would merely have devoted his attention to the chemical elements which yet remain to be discovered. Since the great chemist, Ramsay, discovered Argon, the most sensational development in this fascinating line is the isolation of an element named Helium. The existence of this element was detected by two Danish chemists and immediately afterwards a British chemist announced that he had actually isolated the new element. He had obtained the material from black sand found in large quantities in New Zealand, and he suggests that the properties of the element will make it suitable for the filaments of electric incandescent lamps and for other purposes where high temperatures have to be withstood.

Canada's Capitalists

Thousands of Small Shareholders Have Stock in Banks

A financial writer has had the curiosity to go into the shareholders' lists of Canada's banks to discover who are the capitalists. The belief that the banks are owned by millionaires is quickly dispelled in any analysis of the lists of shareholders. Not only do these lists indicate that there are many thousands of small shareholders throughout the country, but that many of these are farmers, and a rather remarkably large proportion are women; estates, too, are represented by large holdings.

In the case of one bank with 1,723 shareholders, 475 are farmers, 481 are women, and 41 are trustees. Another with 50,999 shares outstanding has 2,040 shareholders, of this number, 512 are women, holding 14,181 shares, 277 estates own 1,237 shares, and 51 farmers hold 1,065 shares.

In the case of the Bank of Hamilton the 50,000 shares are held by 1,947 shareholders. Of these, 904 are women, 102 are farmers and 200 are trustees and executors. The total number of shareholders of the Bank of Nova Scotia is 2,657. Of these, 2,441 own 25 shares or less, and there are 2,061 holders of 10 shares and under. An analysis of the vocations of the shareholders has not been made, but the statement is made on authority that a large number are farmers.

Optimism

The manager of the Maple Leaf Milling Company, Charles Suckie, predicts that Vancouver will soon be shipping 100,000,000 to 150,000,000 bushels of grain annually. This is certainly optimism, and encourages faith in the development of Canada.—Herald-Expositor.

MARCH WEATHER DANGEROUS TO BABY

Our Canadian March weather—one day bright, but slippy, the next blustery and cold—is extremely hard on children. Conditions make it necessary for the mothers to keep the little ones indoors. They are often cooped up in overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catch colds which rack their whole system. To guard against these colds and to keep the baby well till the better brighter days come along, a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which never fail to regulate the stomach and bowels and they relieve colds and simple fevers and keep the baby fit. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Less Mutton In New Zealand

Owing to a diminution in the stocks of sheep in New Zealand and the unseasonable weather, the indications are that there will be a considerable shortage in the mutton and lamb supply this season. It is expected that at least 75,000 fewer sheep will be killed than usual and unless the weather improves the lamb killings will also be affected.

Taxation Burden In Britain

Parts With Estate Which Belonged to Family Seven Centuries

Burdens of taxation continue to press heavily on owners of large estates in Britain, and the list of land proprietors who have to abandon such properties continues to grow.

One of the latest to yield to financial pressure is Sir Edmund Chayler, who has been compelled by heavy taxes to tell his estate at Croft, Yorkshire, which has been owned by the same family for seven centuries. Another vast estate, bordering on the New Forest, owned by the Tragett family, has just been sold because of the high taxation.

FROM CORRESPONDENTS

To the Editor of the Enterprise, Blairmore, Alberta.

Sirs: In view of the present struggle between the supporters of prohibition and the supporters of the existing laws, I should like to draw your attention to the following extracts from an article recently printed in the San Francisco "Argonaut." The article simply repeats what is the general verdict of those visiting and returning from the United States, but it puts the matter pretty clearly and I think it behooves us to ask ourselves whether there is much to choose between ourselves and the condition of things described therein.

"The mess of criminality and fanaticism revealed in this city by the Willmot trial—is but a small symptom of a national corruption growing, as might have been expected, out of the effort to repress the natural propensities of the people toward something not in itself criminal, but only made so by statute. The Cabinet meeting held late in November on the subject of the Volstead violations and the President's statement following indicated how seriously the situation is being taken at Washington. It was no mere concern over drink or drinking or minor or sporadic breaches of law, that called forth that statement. The head of the nation is alarmed by a condition of affairs that threatens the national life more seriously than drink, more seriously than it was ever threatened by the liquor interests, when those interests had a legal status.

"There are bootlegging organizations of big money and big business and daring operatives that are national in scope and have international branches. Their influence on the national life, character and policies must be as terrible as it is wide. They enjoy protection in high places and envy in low. Honest labor no longer yields rewards comparable to those of men that have quit it and gone into law-breaking as a business. And let the next generation see; in many an American city, large and small, is going to be dominated by the lawlessness of the great bootlegging fortunes of these years."

Having read the above, I ask again, do our prohibition laws differ widely in their effects from those quoted above? We know very well that they do not and it is time that the public woke up to the fact of the demoralization and corruption rife in their midst. It is time that active steps were taken to put an end to it.

F. JACKSON.
Winnipeg, Man.
March 13, 1922.

When one reads of the pruning to be done by the government in the interests of conservation of provincial finances, he must wonder why the hands at Edmonton overlook the needless expenditure in the Crows' Nest Pass, where a staff of police and their equipment have been maintained for several months since the roads be come impassable for vehicle traffic, spending anywhere from $500 to $1000 a month needlessly, while funds are needed for such worthy causes as widowed mothers' and orphaned children's maintenance.

A Coleman gaming joint was raided by police last week. The proprietors of the place, as well as a number of frequenters and inmates, were hauled before the magistrate and on pleading guilty paid fines and court costs.

Artists kindly lent their services to the entertainment: Mr. and Mrs. Altham, G. Miller's orchestra, Miss Cole, elocutionist of Bellevue; Mrs. W. Stevenson; J. Royle, violin soloist; J. Graham, R. Richards, Miss Lavender and Miss Reid, quartette. The winner in the guess as to the number of beans in the jar was Miss Reid, 890 being the guess, while the jar actually contained 891. She carried off two dressed chickens. Ed. Royle acted as auctioneer. Dr. McDonald, of Blairmore, making an ideal chairman.

IN PIERCE BAY, CANADIANS BEAT BANKERS IN THE HILL COTTAGES

What a night! What a crowd! But what was it all about? Well, it was like this:

The West Canadian have a hockey team and so have the Bankers and after much talk it was arranged that the two teams should meet, and I met they did and it all happened on a Thursday in the glorious month of March.

The night was dark, and the trail to the rink was lined with rabid fans, such and everyone explaining to the other the good points of the teams. It was afterwards found that McDougall had the best points, the most prominent being held in the rear.

To the 2650 paid admission fans it was a glorious night.

The West Canadians took the ice at 1:00 to the strains of Mendelsohn's "Spring Song" for well two minutes later by the Bankers, who were heralded by the sounds of "Oh, where is my boy tonight?"

The fans went wild, so did the players. The bell tolled and Referee Turner started things rolling.

Smith got the puck on a nice pass from Chappell, but was robbed by Bird who was on his knees praying for something. Bird took the puck and after serving two faults retired to his coach. Congdon, that flashy bit of forward stuff, rushed the puck and McDougall saved in a thrilling manner.

Smith took the rebound and drove straight to the goal, but got the bunker in which Bird was concealed. Bird passed to McLeod, who tore up the ice and everything else he came in contact with, and on near the goal passed to take his hat off to goal tender Morgan. He saw his mistake too late, and realizing he was not among gentlemen, rushed back to his own territory where he had a couple of rounds with Congdon. Cries of "Kill him! Kill him!" came from the fans, who were now on the crates and every other unsafe place thinkable.

After the referee had cautioned these two players, play resumed and it was here that the prettiest piece of play of the evening started. Green, that fast and hard checking defense of the Canadians, took the puck into the enemies' territory, only to lose it to that wily old Bird, who passed it to McLeod, who in the smartest and most tricky bit of stick handling tore through the whole of the Canadians to beat Morgan, the daddy of goal tenders, for the first counter of the game, time 3:45. The crowd was wild, raving. The building rocked and it looked like a hard night.

Smith took the puck from the face-off and was stopped by Binn, who kissed him and passed the rubber to the ice. A very nice bit of work, Smith being completely off his guard, Snyder (or Cider) rushed and scored two minutes later. This young man has a great future. According to some, he should at least get ten years. Others say he should hang. I incline rather to the days of the inquisition, they were such good sports in those days and you always got time to think over your misdeeds. The period ended very ragged and from the looks on the faces of the players there was war brooding somewhere, and it came with a vengeance. It happened in the second period, after two minutes. The referee saw it and named no doubt, bumped into Chappell. Then things started. Sticks, fists, rum, skates, polemics, doctors and other obnoxious things were mixed up together on the ice and the crowd seemed to be in the way of a free-for-all, cheered the Gladiators on. Sergeant Scott, peace officer for the rink, rushed on the ice, armed to the teeth, and being more tired of foot than Corp. Stevens, who was leading after the interests of Canadians, got to the center of the ring first. Oh, boy, what a time was had. All one could see was a bit of policeman here, and there underneath about twenty players, etc. After the referee had tried to get some and put the police off with numerous other things.

There was started again and some very nice hockey was seen. There is no doubt in the mind of the referee that the most effective player on the ice was Green. One could see touches of Lalonde, Taylor, Patrick combined in his plays. The period ended in another little riot in which Binn and Congdon were going to take the mat, but the referee rushed and split what might have been a really good vaudeville turn. Congdon has a rather funny little way about him.

The third period got away to a good start with Bennett charging up the ice on his own. For some reason none of the opposing forces had a mind to stop him. Maybe it was the evil look in his eye, or it might have been the things he was saying to himself. However, he scored, a very pretty goal that was really wonderful. Taking the puck to centre ice, he switched off at right angles to the goal, and in a complete surprise, which no untrained McDougall that he was completely fooled when Bennett remained his feet, and failed to stop the very hot one that went by him. The other players were so interested in the pretty one, that they failed to interfere and so started the scoring for the Canadians. Pet to get a little short title, then started a little spree. Taking the puck in and around the opposing goal, he rushed through one of the lines, and scored. This was practicing the Bennett start) and scored, much to McDougall's disgust. Once again Green got the puck and rushed through one of the lines, and scored. This was practicing the Bennett start) and scored, much to McDougall's disgust. Once again Green got the puck and rushed through one of the lines, and scored. This was practicing the Bennett start) and scored, much to McDougall's disgust.

Putting two or three players off the Canadians, he threw the puck at McDougall, the force of which knocked Mac down and Green placed it nicely in the corner of the net. Mac said something, but we are not allowed to print it.

By this time the fans and the players were crazy. One could almost imagine that one was back in the days of the foot races. The players were like the ancient gladiators, in the stadium, while the fans urged them on to their great deeds of strength. One very pretty episode occurred here. Bird, who without doubt, was the finest built and the best looking man in the rink, rushed up the aisle with the rubber and at about the center, stopped to do a little bit of funny work (it all happened in a trice). One of the fairest of the fair seen rushed to the boards that separated the players from the mob (it was a good thing it was there, or we don't know what might have happened) and taking a beautiful sample of that flower of Flowers, the Carotus, away he went, and at the same time throwing kisses and other things. This, however, did not stop the young blood. Taking the Carotus between his teeth, he rushed. Brandishing his sword, he charged up the arena to the cheers of the maddest throng. Only to be robbed of his trophy by that wily old Green. This almost caused a divorce. Once again play started and once again thrills commenced, this time from a dark horse, one running under the name of Thompson. No one had noticed this young man before, but he was there, much to the amazement of the Bankers. Away he went, and letting a tremendous yell out of his lungs, not unlike the death yell of Tarzan, rushed like a madman, who thinking he had heard this call somewhere before looked around to see where his mate was, who, bang, he awoke to find the rubber in the castle of his dream.

Things then became hot. Binn again scored for the Bankers and Bennett for the Canadians.

At this time sticks were flying in all directions. Green was put off for the falling of the referee what they found in old man Tut's tomb, and

Bennett for translating a few of the Latin expressions that Green used.

By this time the whole of the city, and other police forces were mustered at the entrance and the referee seeing a row, stopped the game just as the gong sounded. So ended one of the most thrilling encounters of the day. Score—Canadians 5; Bankers 3.

Although beaten in the hockey, the Bankers took drastic cutting losses.

Bird beat Congdon 11 to 2 and McLeod beat Chappell's rink 11-8, thus winning the round for the Bankers

by a total of 23 to 15. The losers

There was no time to waste in loitering, for at any moment Bill, Leslie might arrive and the boys would summon reinforcements from amongst Moran's following. Hurrying Santry already out of that house, open the door and they looked out cautiously. No one was in sight, and a couple of minutes later the two men were mounted and on their way out of town.

"By the great horned toad!" Santry exclaimed, as they left the lights of Crawling Water behind them. "It sure feels good to be out of this bled-barn-house. It wasn't our fault, Gordon, and say, about this here shooting."

"I know all about that, Bill," Wade interposed. "The boys told me. They're waiting and are out of that house. But your arrest, that's what I want to hear about."

"Well, it was this-a-way," the old man explained. "They sneaked up on the house in the dark and got on the roof. As I said, I rise to remark that never no more will I separate myself from my six-shooter. Moran's one good man has got himself killed just because his gun wasn't where it oughter be when he needed it. Of course, we put up the best scrap we could, but we didn't have no chance, Gordon. The first thing I know, while I was tussling with one feller, somebody fetched me a rap on the head with a pistol-butt, and I went down for the count. Any of the boys shoot up?"

Wade described the appearance of the ranch house on the previous night, and Santry swore right merrily. "What's on the cards now," he demanded. "How much longer are we goin' to stand for?"

"No longer," Wade declared crisply. "That's why the boys are waiting for us at the pine. We're going to run Moran and his gang out of this place as soon as we can get there, and then we're going to run them out of the country."

"Whoop-e-e-e-e!" The old plainsman's yell of exultation split the night like the yelp of a coyote and brought his hand down on Wade's back with a force which made the latter wince. "That's the way, old man, that's the way! That's the finest news I've heard since my old mammy said to the parson, 'Call him Bill, for short.' Whoop-e-e-e-e!"

Wade's warning to keep still was lost on the wild, for Santry stuck his spurs into his horse's flanks and charged along the trail like an old time knight. With a grim smile his employer put on speed and followed him.

CHAPTER IX.

The Battle at the Ranch

When Wade and Santry approached the big pine, the waiting men came out from its shadow and rode forward, with the borrowed rifles across their saddle horns.

"All right, boys," the rancher asked, taking Trowbridge's new rifle, a beautiful weapon, which Lawson handed to him.

"All right, sir," answered Tim Sullivan.

BEFORE MY BABY CAME

I Was Greatly Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sydenham, Ont.—"I took your medicine before my baby was born, and it was a great help to me as I was very poorly until I had started to take it. I just felt as though I was tired out all the time and would have weak, faint spells. My nerves would bother me until I could get little rest, night or day. I was told by a friend to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I only took a few bottles and it helped me wonderfully. I would recommend it to any woman. I am doing what I can to recommend this good medicine. I would like to tell you how much pleasure you have given me in regard to the Vegetable Compound if it will help other women take it. Mrs. HARVEY McLEOD, Sydenham, Ont.

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many women are poorly at such times and get into a weakened, run-down condition, when it is essential to the mother, as well as the child, that her strength be kept up.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother at this time. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and does not contain any harmful drugs. It may be taken in safety by the nursing mother.

van, adding the "air" in extension of his beleaguered condition the night before, while each man gave Santry a silent handshake to welcome him home.

Grinly, silently, then, save for the dashing of their horses' hoofs against the loose stones, and an occasional muttered imprecatio, the seven men rode rapidly toward the mountains. In numbers, their party was about even with the enemy, and the advantage, if possible, should rest with him in order to offset the advantage of the house. But, however that might be, each man realized that the die had been cast and that the fight, once begun, would go to a finish.

"I only hope," Santry remarked, as a steep grade forced them to lessen their speed, "I can get my two hands on that cursed tin horn, Moran. Him and me has a misunderstanding to settle, for sure."

"You leave him to me, Bill," Wade spoke, vindictively. "He's my meat." "Well, since you ask it, I'll try, boy. But there's gold in them mountains, sure as taxes, and when I get to fighting, I'm liable to go plumb, hog wild. I hope you don't get into no trouble over this here business of mine. That 'ud make me feel bad, Gordon."

"I don't worry about that now, Bill." "That's right. Don't worry till you have to, and then you'll say 'That's been my motto all my born days, and it ain't such darn bad philosophy at that.' At night, the old man chuckled to himself—"I wonder if the Sheriff put up most of that there grub before he let them go."

Wade laughed out loud, and as though in response, an owl hooted somewhere else, the timber to their right.

"There's a damned old hoot owl," growled Wade, "never like to hear them things—they most always mean bad luck."

He pointed to the head of the little column, and the rest of the way to the ranch was passed in ominous silence. They finally arrived at the edge of the clearing, and cautiously dismounted, everything seemed from the exterior, at least, as it should be. The night before the two men were out, and there was no sign of life about the place. Wade wondered if the posse had gone.

"There ain't no use in speculating," declared Santry. "They may be asleep, and they may not be. I'm in there in the dark. This will take a rise out of 'em anyhow."

At sight of the old fellow, pistol in hand, Wade called to him to wait, but as he spoke Santry fired two quick shots and then he was in the house. There was an immediate commotion in the ranch house. A man inside was heard to cry out, while another showed his face for an instant under the moonlight fell across a window. He hastily ducked out of sight, but a splash on a rock behind the glass just above his head. Presently a gun cracked inside the house and a splash on a rock behind the glass told them where the shot had struck.

"Whoop-e-e-e-e!" Santry yelled, discharging the four remaining shots in his revolver at the window. "We've got 'em good. They don't know how many we are."

"They were probably asleep," said Wade, and he was partly right. He sneaked in and captured the whole without firing a shot. That's what he meant to do before you cut loose."

Santry shook his grizzled head as he looked on the scene.

"Well, now, that would have been just a mile rickety, boy. The way things and things go, it's a real advantage, and..." He broke off to take a snapshot at a man who showed himself in the window for an instant in an effort to get a glimpse of the attacking force. "One!" muttered the old plainsman to himself.

By this time Wade had thrown himself down on his stomach behind a boulder to Santry's left and was shooting him a look from the door of the house, directly in front of him. He knew that door. It was built of inch lumber, and he had no doubt that a bullet, after passing through it, would reach the interior of the cabin from the outside.

He kept up the line of his fire by hugging the walls on either side, where the party was partly exposed to the leaden hail which Santry and the panchers were directing at the windows.

There was a grim, baleful look on the young man's usually pleasant face, and his eyes held a pitiless gleam. He was shooting straight, shooting to kill, and taking a fierce delight in the act. The blood lust was upon him, that primal, instinctive desire for combat in a righteous cause that lies hidden at the very bottom of every strong man's nature. And there came to his mind no possible question of the righteous nature of his cause. He was fighting to regain possession of his own home from the marauders who had invaded it. His enemies had crowded him to the wall, and now they were paying the penalty. Wade worked the lever of his Winchester as though he had no other business in life. A streak of yellow mingled with a bloody trickle from a bullet scratch on his cheek gave him the features a fairly ferocious expression.

Santry, glancing toward him, chuckled without merriment. "The boy's woke up at last," he muttered to himself. "They've drove him to it, sure. I know almost well that this law or order stunt couldn't last forever. Wow!"

The latter exclamation was caused by a bullet which ricocheted from the rock near his head, driving a quantity of fine particles into his face.

"Whoop-e-e-e!" he howled a moment later. "We got 'em good. It's a cinch they can't stand this pace for more'n a week."

Indeed, it was a marvel that the defenders kept on fighting as long as they did. Already the door, beneath Wade's machine-like shooting, had been completely riddled; the windows were almost bare of glass; and great splinters of wood had been torn from the log walls by the heavy rifle bullets on their way through to the interior.

Appetite Keen and Bowels Relieved

You can relish your meals without fear of upsetting your liver or stomach if you use Carter's Little Liver Pills. They are the only pills that will relieve the bowels and headache. Small Pill—Small Dose—Small Price.

Soon the door sagged and crashed inward, and into the gaping hole thus made Wade continued to empty his rifle.

At last, the fire of those within slackened and temporarily ceased. Did this mean surrender? Wade asked himself, and ordered his men to stop shooting and wait developments. For some moments all was still, and the advisability of rushing the house was being discussed when all at once the fire of the defenders began again. This time, however, there was something very odd about it. There was a loud banging of exploding cartridges, but only a few shots whistled around the heads of the cattlemen. Nevertheless, Wade told his men to resume shooting, and once more settled down to his own task.

"What's hell they tryin' to do?" Santry demanded. "Sounds like a Fourth of July business to me."

"I don't know," Wade answered, charging the magazine of his rifle, but "what's hell, it's hell they're trying to stop mighty soon."

Then gradually, but none the less certainly, the fire of those within died away, and all was still. This seemed more like a visitation of death, and again Wade ordered his men to stop shooting. They obeyed orders and lay still, keenly watching the house.

"Do you surrender?" Wade shouted, but there was no reply.

Santry sprang to his feet. "By the great horned toad!" he cried. "I'm a-goin' in there! Anybody that wants to come along is welcome."

Not a man in the party would be dared in that way, so taking advantage of such cover as offered, they advanced upon the cabin, steadily and first and then more rapidly, as they met with no resistance—no sign whatever of life. A final rush carried them through the doorway into the house, where they expected to find a number of the enemy.

Wade struck a light, and faced about with a start as a low groan came from a corner of the back room. A man lay at full length on the floor, tied hand and foot and gagged. It was a man, one of the men who had been surprised and captured by the posse, and a Highlander away in a corner of the room, the wall his companions lay in a like condition. With his knife Wade was cutting them loose, and glancing at the man in a padded search for a wound he hoped to find in the house, when Santry shouted something from the kitchen.

TELLS HOW CATARRH IS DESTROYED QUICKLY

Catarrh suffers meaning those with colds, sore throat, bronchial trouble, etc., can all be fixed up right at home by inhaling "Catarrhine." In using Catarrhine you don't take medicine into the stomach—you just breathe a healing pinny vapor direct into the lungs and air passages. The purest balsams and the greatest antiseptics are thus sent to every spot where catarrhal trouble exists—germs are killed, foul secretions are destroyed, nature is given a chance and the disease ends quickly. Cold, throat troubles can't last if the pure healing vapor of Catarrhine is breathed—swelling and inflammation cease at once because irritation is removed. Discussion Or Argument

No matter what a woman's line of conversation—whether it be justified complaint of the butcher or merely her views on the theory of Evolution—it is all just "argument" to her husband. A man can "discuss" a subject with anybody on earth except his wife.

Canada Colonization Association Undertakes Huge Project

There is good news for Western Canada in the announcement that the Canada Colonization Association is overcoming its difficulties, and preparing to bring its settlers this season. The sooner the little lands along the railways are brought under production the sooner will freight rates be lowered by increasing the volume of traffic, and the sooner will the burden of Federal, Provincial and Municipal taxation be lightened to the individual agriculturist, as to every other citizen by distribution over a large number of shoulders. The present depression in Canada is attributable in a large measure to lack of population. For upwards of eight years Canada has suffered from an almost complete cessation of active immigration work abroad. The Canada Colonization Association is hopeful of being able to assist materially in turning the tide.

This much is to be gleaned from an interview obtained from Mr. M. A. Brown, Vice-President of the Association in question, who recently returned from holding important conferences in the east. Mr. Brown said in part: "Our association is in receipt of an additional grant of money from the Federal Treasury for the fiscal year 1923-1924. Not only this. We have been able to take the movement out of politics. The leaders of all three political parties at Ottawa have given united support to the organization. This raises the vital importance of dealing effectively with the settlement of privately-owned lands along the railways."

As a result of a conference called by Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of Colonization, between representatives of the Government, the railways and our association, the Government and the railways are jointly engaged in advertising the agricultural advantages of Canada in Great Britain, Continental Europe and the United States. In this connection it should be added that the Canada Colonization Association does not have to bear the cost of the publicity carried on abroad on its behalf. The expenditures involved in the present immigration propaganda in other countries is borne by the Federal Government and the other interests concerned. As a result of this arrangement the 32-year sales plan of the Canada Colonization Association is this month being explained to seven million readers abroad.

Reference has been made to the fact that the Canada Colonization Association is overcoming its difficulties. In this connection, Mr. Brown said:

"Inaccurate statements regarding the affairs of the association have appeared during the past few weeks. Some of these statements were obviously inspired—others appeared in the press merely through lack of information. The association is carrying out a most difficult undertaking in the face of unusually adverse economic conditions. It has not been easy to effect co-operation between important organizations whose interests are often divergent. The association has depended in order that it may carry out the national task to which it has set its hand. We are determined that it shall not be dominated or controlled by any transportation or land interests, by any religious body, or by any outside pressure."

"It is to emphasize another point—the association will never participate in any immigration plan that does not involve careful selection and direction of new settlers. It would be easy under the present world conditions to dump in Canada vast numbers of undesirable people, but in our view the adoption of such a policy would prove very injurious to those already in the country. The association will not be identified with any immigration movement which does not place in the forefront the welfare of those already on the land."

"It bears repeating that the Canada Colonization Association is a patriotic, non-profit sharing organization which is forbidden by its charter to make any profits out of land transactions. Financed by voluntary contributions from the Government and individual subscribers, its purpose is to assist in the settlement of privately-owned lands which are already provided with transportation facilities, wagon roads, schools and other facilities of civilization, and which so long as they remain idle, fail to make their proper contribution towards the joint wealth of the community."

It will be remembered that last year France sent an exhibition—train through Canada in which was displayed many of her products. It is now Canada's turn to reciprocate. The display will be conveyed in a convoy of over 30 motor trucks. The exhibition will open at Bordeaux on June 15th next, and amongst those points en route will visit Le Havre, Rouen, Nantes, Limoges, Toulouse, Strasbourg, Nancy, Lens-Arras, Boulogne, Amiens, Reims and Verdun.

Many friends will be glad to learn that the quarantine which has been hanging for the past three months at the McCulloch home, near Lundbreck, owing to scarlet fever, has been removed.

P. A. Wintemute, of Calgary, provincial manager of the Manufacturers Life Insurance Co., spent a few days in town this week, going over the district with J. B. Harmer, local agent.

In the semi-pro hockey games of the past week the Scribes of Blaimore defeated the Pharisees of Bellevue 5 to 4 and Thompson's store took a fall out of the Riverside Iron Works by a score of 7 to 5.

A party entered the pool hall at the corner of Seventh Avenue and Victoria Street on Monday morning and asked "Who oiled the floor?" The answer was that Joe Grafton had just returned from Sunburst and had paraded back and forth over it several times.

The engagement is announced of Mrs. Edith H. Shaw, of Calomine, Alberta, youngest daughter of Mr. W. H. Chappell, of Bellevue, and sister of W. H. Chappell, of Blaimore, to Arthur C. Hicks, of Portland, Oregon. The wedding will take place at Calomine on March 28th.

Joseph Grafton has just returned from a tour through the Sunburst oil fields and is "welling up" with optimism over the prospects. Joe needs no lubrication as a booster and on this occasion will do more to the interests of the oil country than all the other advertising mediums so far requisitioned.

Consul Brand left Fernie for Spokane last Wednesday, to be absent a few days on business. During his absence Vice Consul Follett will be in charge of the Consulate. Before leaving, the Consul stated that the quotas of Belgium, Italy, Poland, Russia and Syria were exhausted for the fiscal year. Nationals of these countries who have resided less than one year in Canada cannot secure visas for admission to the United States before July 1, 1923.

Under the new rates of postage from Russia to the American continent, it costs two hundred thousand rubles to mail an ordinary letter, though the letter weighs less than an ounce. That is only ten cents in our money, but if the purchaser of the stamp should decide to pay for it in one-ruble notes, he would need nearly two hundred pounds of paper money.

BANKING AND FINANCE

The estimated expenditures of the Dominion Government for the fiscal year which begins on April 1st next are placed at $427,511,235, of which $268,850,359 has to be voted by parliament, the balance already being authorized by statute. The contemplated decrease in expenditures is $51,660,156. Of the items showing decreases the most notable one is that for the purposes of the Canadian National Railways, which is $75,633,469, as compared with $98,675,555 in the previous year.

In Saskatchewan, during 1922, capital expenditures of municipalities authorized by the local government board amounted to $2,192,671, as compared with $3,210,039 in 1921. For those authorized in 1922 no less a sum than $432,096 was found locally. The January bank statement shows an increase in savings deposits in Canada of $10,648,000, coupled with a decrease in demand deposits of $36,466,000. This change is the reverse of that which occurred a year ago, when savings declined by $37,857,000 and demand deposits rose by $13,994,000. Current loans in Canada continued to decline, but at a slower rate, the decrease being $26,831,000, as against $35,902,000 the previous month and $99,755,000 a year ago.
